

Hyde County Students to Attend Resource Conservation Workshop at North Carolina State University June 21st – June 26th, 2015

Cloey Goins and Jessica Cahoon rising seniors at Mattamuskeet Early College High School have been selected to attend the Resource Conservation Workshop at North Carolina State University on June 21st -June 26th, 2015. This workshop is hosted by the North Carolina Association of Soil & Water Conservation Districts. The Hyde Soil & Water Conservation District is sponsoring both of these students by providing their registration fees and travel expenses.

Cloey is the daughter of James and Rhonda Topping of Swan Quarter, North Carolina. Jessica is the daughter of Aubrey and Jennifer Cahoon of Engelhard, North Carolina. Both of these students are interested in learning about our natural resources and their management in today's environment.

The Resource Conservation Workshop is a week of intensive study requiring student's attention and participation in a wide range of conservation topics. The students will learn about soil characteristics and soil conservation, wildlife and fisheries management, forest management, nonagricultural uses for soils and water quality and watershed management. The students will take several field trips to different facilities and will experience hands on learning in the field. At the end of the week of study the students will have an opportunity to compete for awards and scholarships through their participation in the workshop.

Above: Cloey Goins (left), Jessica Cahoon (right)