

Bonner Bridge Groundbreaking Ceremony

The Groundbreaking ceremony for the Bonner Bridge marks a historical day. It has been over 20 years now since the start of the Bonner Bridge project. Many people gathered to support and celebrate this event.

Governor Pat McCrory called it personal, saying “This is personal for people’s livelihood not just here on the Outer Banks but throughout North Carolina”.

Queen Elizabeth was even there for the event.

The new bridge includes the first-time use of stainless reinforcing steel, deeper pilings and 8-foot-wide shoulders. It is designed to last a century and should open in three years.